

Protecting and Managing Your Health Information

A free seminar for healthcare consumers

What is your health record and why is it important?

- The basis for planning your care and treatment
- The way doctors, nurses, and other healthcare providers talk to each other about your needs
- The legal document describing the care you received
- The means by which you or your insurance company can verify that services billed were actually provided

What is this seminar all about?

- Learn what your medical record contains...how your health information is used...who can access it...and how you can protect it
- Learn about health information privacy laws (HIPAA) and new technologies that can affect your health information...
- Find out how you can improve the quality of care you receive by taking charge of your health information
- Experts will be on hand to answer your questions and gather your feedback in this "town hall" forum
